STATE TREASURER OF OHIO

When a private entity engages in certain activities within the State of Ohio, Ohio law requires that securities be pledged to the Ohio Treasury for the benefit of the agency that regulates such activities. These securities are held in trust and indemnify the relevant agency in the event that a pledger defaults on an obligation arising from the performance of the specific activity. When a private entity engages in specific activities with the State of Ohio, Ohio law requires that securities be pledged with the Ohio Treasury for the benefit of that agency to secure that obligation. The Ohio Treasury is custodian for these pledged monies, accounts, and securities. Details pertaining to procedures for each agency's trust account(s) are found below. As custodian, the Ohio Treasury maintains the collateral in accounts established for each agency and company, or in rare instances (such as may be the case with bearer instruments) secures the collateral on the premises if necessary. The Treasury earmarks all interest earnings to the owner of the collateral. The Treasury releases collateral only with written instructions from the agency to which it is pledged. Owners must contact the agency with a request for release. Prior to collateral reaching maturity the state treasurer's office will notify the agency of the maturity date. The Treasury distributes quarterly inventory and periodic transaction reports to the agency. To determine collateral sufficiency for obligations that must be secured by private entities, the entity must contact the individual agency directly.
